Audiovector R3 Signature

Standing at a height of 103.4mm the R3 Signatures are perfectly formed for domestic acceptability. They feature a pair of 165mm carbon mid-bass units with a R Evotech soft dome tweeter.

The joy of any Audiovector design is they have an upgrade path. While the Signature is a great speaker in its own right, it can grow with your system thanks to factory upgrades to take this speaker to Avantgarde or Arreté performance levels, as and when it suits you, the listener.

In Alan Sircom’s test he reported, “...it’s a broad church’ – could neatly sum up almost everything about the Audiovector R3, especially in its Signature guise. Just as it isn’t that amp or position fussy, so the R3 Signature is hugely accommodating of music played.

“Audiovector’s R3 Signature is a loudspeaker with staying power, even if you decide not to take the upgrade path. If you do, it’s a stepping stone to audio greatness, but given the R3 Signature is pretty damn great to begin with, this speaker might just be all you ever need.” +
